Apparent Terror Lair Found

Raids uncover bomb-making shop, suspected Zarqawi base

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | U.S. troops sweeping through Fallujah on Thursday found what appeared to be a command center used by followers of Jordanian terrorist Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, and a U.S. general expressed confidence the battle for the city has "broken the back of the insurgency."

A separate raid near the suspected command center uncovered a bomb-making workshop where an SUV registered in Texas was being converted into a car bomb and a classroom that held flight plans and instructions on shooting down planes, according to a CNN crew embedded with the U.S. Army.

Al-Zarqawi's group, Al Qaeda in Iraq, is considered the deadliest terrorist network in the country, held responsible for a string of deadly car bombings and gruesome kidnappings and beheadings of foreign hostages, including three Americans.

According to CNN, the suspected al-Zarqawi base was in an imposing house with concrete columns and a large sign in Arabic reading "Al Qaeda Organization" and "There is no God but Allah and Muhammad is his messenger."

Inside the building, U.S. soldiers found documents, old computers and copies of the Quran. Several bodies also were found.

Nearby, in another location in the industrial section of southeastern Fallujah, troops found a bomb-making workshop, complete with a makeshift classroom for training militants that included flight plans and instructions on how to shoot down aircraft.

Gunbattles still flared in Fallujah as troops hunted insurgents five days after the military said its forces had occupied the city 40 miles west of Baghdad. One U.S. Marine and one Iraqi soldier were killed, U.S. officials said. MAGGIE MICHAEL (AP)

RATINGS

Just the Bare Facts

A Cleveland television news station is catching flak after its anchor gave the audience the naked truth. Sharon Reed was one of hundreds of people who participated in artist Spencer Tunick's nude photo installation in June. Her report, shown Monday on WOIO-TV, showed her nude from a distance, and semi-nude in close shots, in a story about the artist's photographs, drawing a record number of viewers for the time slot during November sweeps. WOIO news director Steve Doerr said the report covered Tunick in an original way, and Reed said she considered it an important story about art. (AP)

Get Me to the Pawn Shop on Time

Is the wedding still on? That's one of the unanswered questions in the case of a Milford, Conn., man who, police said, sold his fiancée's engagement ring after staging a break-in at the couple's home. George Rich, 43, was charged Tuesday with falsely reporting an incident and providing a false statement. Police said Rich made the couple's home look like a burglar had broken in and stolen jewelry, including the gold engagement ring with diamonds, and reported the incident to police. He then pawned the items for $5,000, officials said. (AP)

POSTAL SERVICE

Introducing the New Overdecades Service

The mail must get through, but sometimes it takes a little time—in this case, 54 years. A letter mailed on Sept. 22, 1950, in Oslo, Norway, finally made it to the town of Halden this week, the Halden Arbeiderbladet newspaper reported. Recipient Brita Loevaas said the letter was from her mother-in-law, who died many years ago. "My son was 2 years old then, and is now closing in on retirement age," she said. "That puts the time that has passed in perspective." The mail service sought to make amends by delivering a bouquet of flowers along with the letter. (AP)

JEALOUSY

Coquette Corp.

One London entrepreneur's business venture has her seeing green with envy. After one of her ex-boyfriends was hit on by another woman, Rachel Bailey launched a service where she flirts with boyfriends and husbands to make their spouses jealous, The Sun reported. She charges $93 an hour and said she has been swamped with business. Bailey is now so busy she's planning to take on other women to cope with demand, she said. She said the service is meant for men who feel their partners have stopped paying enough attention to them. "It's amazing what a bit of jealousy can do for a relationship that has hit the rocks," she said. (EXPRESS)

Presidential library hailed as 'gift to the future'

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. | Bill Clinton, America's first baby-boomer president, opened his library Thursday with a rock 'n' roll gala that hailed the $165 million glass-and-steel museum as "a gift to the future by a man who always believed in the future."

Despite a steady, bone-chilling rain, nearly 30,000 people joined a celebration that included tributes from President Bush, his father and former President Carter. Rock stars Bono and The Edge of the band U2 performed a three-song set before Clinton spoke to a crowd that included dignitaries and local citizens. Poetry and gospel singing added a down-home flavor.

The sleek, futuristic William J. Clinton Presidential Center is meant to be a metaphorical "bridge to the 21st century" cantilevered out over the bank of the Arkansas River, a theme of the Clinton presidency.

"What it is to me is a symbol of not only what I tried to do but what I want to do with the rest of my life, building bridges from yesterday to tomorrow, building bridges across racial and religious and ethnic and income and political divides," said Clinton, accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Among his remarks, President Bush called the library "a gift to the future by a man who always believed in the future, and today we thank him for loving and serving America."

Concerns Raised on Drug Safety

FDA reviewer says public is 'defenseless' against another Vioxx

WASHINGTON | At least five medications now sold to consumers pose such risks that their sale should be limited or stopped, said a government drug reviewer who raised safety questions earlier about the arthritis drug Vioxx.

In testimony Thursday before the Senate Finance Committee, Food and Drug Administration reviewer David

Graham

Graham cited Meridia, Crestor, Accutane, Bextra and Serevent. Drug makers defended the use and safety of their products.

Graham contended the country is "virtually defenseless" against a repeat of the Vioxx debacle.

Merck & Co. pulled Vioxx from the market on Sept. 30 after a study indicated the popular painkiller doubled the risk of heart attacks and stroke when taken for longer than 18 months.

The committee chairman, Sen. Charles Grassley, suggested an independent board may be needed to ensure the safety of medications after FDA approval. (AP)

Fossil Could Be Ancient Ancestor

Creature may be link to great apes, humans

WASHINGTON | A nearly 13 million-year-old ape discovered in Spain is the last probable common ancestor to all living humans and great apes, a research team says in Friday's issue of Science magazine.

A husband-and-wife team of fossil sleuths unearthed an animal with a body like an ape, fingers like a chimp and the upright posture of humans. The ancient ape bridges the gap between earlier, primitive animals and later, modern creatures.

This newest ape species,
Pierolapithecus catalaunicus, is so significant that it adds a new page to ancient human history.

The researchers sidestepped a controversy in their field by not claiming their find moves great ape

"I have assured the president said at a news conference where outgoing chairman Orrin Hatch, R-

Heroin production is booming in Afghanistan, undermining democracy and putting money in the coffers of terrorists, according to a U.N. report Thursday that called on U.S. and NATO-led forces get more involved in fighting drug traffickers. But Egypt did not appear satisfied, issuing a rare statement lambasting Israel. (AP)

Arafat Records Near Release

French: Nephew to get access to Palestinian leader's medical file

LONDON | Nearly a week after his death, speculation still swirls around what killed Yasser Arafat. Cirrhosis of the liver, AIDS, a blood disorder and poisoning are frequently mentioned in unconfirmed reports — all consistent with the little that is publicly known about the medical condition that landed the Palestinian leader in a French hospital.

However, the mystery may soon be resolved: the French say they will hand Arafat's records to Nasser al-

Kidwa — a relative, as required, but also the Palestinians' ambassador to the United Nations. Al-Kidwa is scheduled to fly to Paris on Friday to collect the medical files.

"The full medical report of President Arafat is a historical document for the Palestinian people," Hassan Abu Libdeh, the Palestinian Cabinet secretary, said Thursday. "The Palestinian Authority will take the necessary decisions, including informing the Palestinian people about the full details of the report."

It was not clear whether Arafat's wife, Suha, agreed to the release or even whether her consent was required. EMMA ROSS (AP)

Ivory Coast Tries To Jettison Image Of War-Mongering

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST | Ivory Coast's Cabinet convened Thursday for the first time since a deadly airstrike on French peacekeepers plunged the country into crisis, declaring that it was not looking for war.

"I am not a warrior. I am for peace," said Seydou Diarra, prime minister under a now-collapsed power-sharing deal. The country has been on the brink of renewed war since Nov. 4, when President Laurent Gbagbo's military broke a ceasefire by bombing rebel positions.

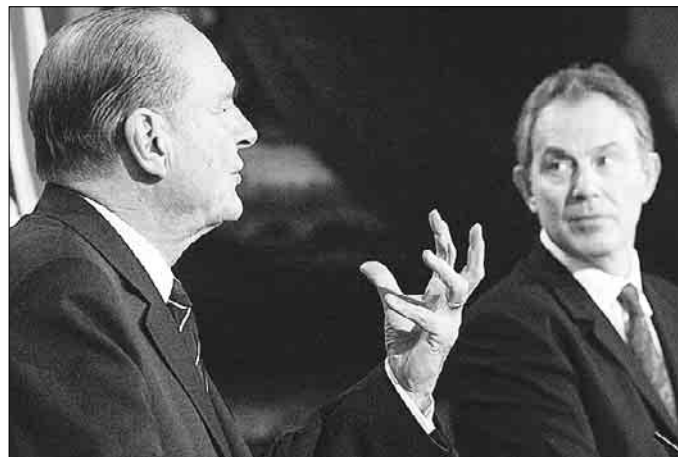

One airstrike killed nine French peacekeepers and an American aid worker. France responded by destroying the country's tiny air force, which prompted violent protests by pro-government militias.

On Thursday, Gbagbo left his mansion for the first time since the crisis began, traveling under guard to the Cabinet meeting. (AP)

British Vote To Outlaw Fox Hunting

Opponents say they will defy the ban, plan to fight it in court

LONDON | Britain outlawed fox hunting in England and Wales on Thursday as elected legislators won a dramatic standoff with the House of Lords to ban a popular country sport despised by many urbanites.

The formality of royal assent followed within 45 minutes.

Hunting supporters have vowed to defy the ban, which becomes effective in three months, and to fight it in court.

The Commons invoked the rarely used 1949 Parliament Act to force the ban into law despite the opposition of the unelected House of Lords.

The years-long debate over outlawing a sport opponents see as simply cruel has been highly charged and deeply divisive. John Jackson, chairman of the pro-hunting Countryside Alliance, said Thursday that hunters would not cooperate with a ban. "True civil disobedience is now on the horizon," he said.

While it will still be legal to shoot foxes, the legislation bans all hunting with hounds, including the pursuit of hares and stags. (AP)

U.N. Holds Special Meeting on Sudan

Rare gathering outside U.S. focuses on conflicts

NAIROBI, KENYA | The U.N. Security Council considered a draft resolution on Sudan Friday, the second and final day of a rare meeting outside of New York intended to focus world attention on two conflicts that have left millions dead or homeless.

The council was pushing for the rapid conclusion of a two-year peace process to end a 21-year civil war in southern Sudan, while highlighting the need to end ongoing fighting in the western Darfur region.

The meeting in the Kenyan capital, Nairobi, is only the fourth time the council has met outside the United States since the United Nations was founded in 1945.

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, John Danforth, said the special meeting would "put Sudan and the problems of Sudan at the center of the world stage."

While two previous resolutions have threatened sanctions against the government, the council was expected to pass a resolution Friday morning that only promises it will monitor the situation in Sudan and "take appropriate action" against any side that fails to support the peace process. STANDARDS: Canadian Prime Minister Paul Martin on Thursday banished a maverick legislator with a history of anti-President Bush comments from his Liberal Party. # Metro Promises Changes

Customer service tops agenda, bank sponsors upcoming free ride

WASHINGTON | Metro is promising widespread changes — including a morning of free subway rides — in an effort to win over frustrated transit users.

"We've got to try to change the culture of the organization," Metro CEO Richard A. White said Thursday. White presented a 19-page report to board members that detailed initiatives aimed at improving reliability and customer service.

They included better training, hiring friendly workers, cleaner trains and stations, keeping doors open longer and ways for riders to report rude behavior or unsafe operations. Rail riders also would receive on-the-spot refunds for major delays.

As part of a promotion paid for by the online bank ING Direct, Metro will offer free subway rides from 5 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Dec. 16.

The management changes follow complaints from riders who've endured back-to-back fare hikes this and last year, frequent breakdowns and overcrowded trains.

Passengers will also soon be able to contact three members of management assigned to take complaints from the different rail lines. Their names, contact information and photographs will be posted at the stations. CANDACE SMITH (AP)

SEE CHANGE?

Among other improvements, Metro managers said they would:

REACH OUT to riders through regular Internet chats, planned to begin in mid-December; hold more open houses and "town hall" meetings; and make more detailed service announcements.
REPLACE the system used to track complaints to decrease response time and develop better reports on trends.

ON TRACK: Metro plans to open its 84th rail station — the New York Avenue stop — Saturday, Nov. 20 at 10 a.m. The station is located between Florida Avenue and M Street, NE.

Evans: There's Time To Adjust Stadium Plan

WASHINGTON | Barry Blechman enjoys a good baseball game, but he's not sold on the $48,000 his company would pay annually for a new stadium.

Blechman started his defense consulting business in the District 20 years ago with one employee and now has 200. They are not expected to reap any direct benefits from the ballpark.

D.C. Councilman Jack Evans, Ward 2, told business leaders Thursday there is still time to adjust the city's plan to finance a baseball stadium along the Anacostia waterfront.

The plan has changed in recent months. Some of the city's smallest businesses — those earning less than $4 million a year in gross receipts — are now exempt from paying extra taxes. Instead, businesses that generate $25 million a year will have to pay more — $48,000 a year.

Evans said he's open to changing that formula, telling business leaders to make suggestions.

Blechman suggested a more gradual tax scale. "It's not trivial. I'm not Neiman Marcus," Blechman said of the gross receipts tax. (AP)

BWI, Dulles Mulling Private Screeners

Baltimore-Washington International and Washington Dulles International airports are considering replacing federal security screeners with private contractors.

The Transportation Security Administration, which took over screening after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, says airports now can apply for permission to make such transitions. TSA is planning a switch for approved airports by the spring or summer of next year.

The process to apply for the transition is complex, and the TSA stipulates the private firms must abide by the same security standards as TSA. Federal supervisors already stationed at airports would oversee the contractors.

Officials at both airports said they were still studying the issue and hadn't made final decisions. (AP)

Knight Steps Down From Posts at Nike

Pioneering CEO built company from ground up

PORTLAND | Phil Knight stepped down Thursday as president and chief executive officer of Nike Inc., the $12 billion athletic company he co-founded and built into the world's largest shoe maker.

He will be succeeded by William D. Perez, head of S.C. Johnson & Son Inc., maker of Glade air fresheners and Drano drain cleaner.

Knight, 66, will remain as chairman of the company's board of directors, the company said.

Knight founded Blue Ribbon Sports, Inc., with Bill Bowerman in 1968. Knight's first shoes, which he sold out of the trunk of his car, had soles made on Bowerman's waffle iron. The company was renamed Nike in 1972.

Under Knight, Nike has recruited star athletes such as Tiger Woods and Michael Jordan to promote its products.

"I am confident that as CEO ..., Bill will lead Nike's extraordinary team of people to create an even bigger and better global company," Knight said in a statement. He gave no reason for relinquishing the titles. His resignation is effective Dec. 28. (AP)

The Secret Science

'Kinsey' explores the dark side of its iconoclastic subject

FILM | With its intelligent subject matter, "Kinsey" is giddy, even borderline orgasmic, with the possibility of discovery.

It's also beautifully written, handsomely photographed and flawlessly acted by a solid cast, led by Liam Neeson, Laura Linney and an alluring Peter Sarsgaard.

It's Oscar bait — but don't be daunted. It doesn't take itself too seriously. Writer-director Bill Condon ("Gods and Monsters") does tend to deify his subject, professor Alfred Kinsey, who first shocked the world with his 1948 book, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male," and again with his 1953 follow-up, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female."

Kinsey boldly went where no man had gone before: in the bedrooms of men and women across the country, asking detailed ques-

Condon switches to black and white for the scenes in which Kinsey interviews candidates for his team of researchers, and the moments are the film's most thrilling.

Kinsey picks Clyde Martin (Peter Sarsgaard), a bisexual student; Wardell Pomeroy (Chris O'Donnell), whose boyish looks belie his curiosity; and Paul Gebhard (Timothy Hutton) who's completely enthusiastic about delving into such provocative territory.

Soon, they're all jumping in — to bed, with each other, as Kinsey creates a sort of omnisexual Shangri-La among his colleagues and their wives. Things get a little creepy at this point, and uncomfortable for Clara, who had been totally cool with all this experimentation — for the sake of science, of course.

The strapping Neeson transforms himself from the inside out, and Linney is every bit his equal. As she's done in countless films, she gives another intelligent, disarming performance.

But it's hard not to walk out thinking of Clyde. Sarsgaard is believably magnetic as the force that binds Kinsey and Clara and sometimes pulls them apart.

SpongeBob surfaces for a good-natured if overlong feature film

FILM | Absorbent and yellow and porous is he, even SpongeBob SquarePants has a limit to what he can achieve.

Part of the charm of the Nickelodeon program "SpongeBob SquarePants" is its quickness and quirkiness. By extending the premise to a 90-minute feature, "SpongeBob SquarePants Movie" feels dragged out and slowed down.

The movie begins with SpongeBob waking up to what he hopes is a big day. Mr. Krabs (Clancy Brown), his boss at the Krusty Krab restaurant, is opening a Krusty Krab 2, and SpongeBob is certain he'll be named manager.

He isn't — uptight squid Squidward (Rodger Bumpass) gets the gig. Meanwhile, the scheming Plankton, owner of the competing Chum Bucket restaurant, frames

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Mr. Krabs by making it look as if he stole the crown from the merciless King Neptune (Jeffrey Tambor).

SpongeBob and Patrick offer to travel to dangerous Shell City and bring it back.

Some of the obstacles they encounter may be too frightening for very small children, like a scary bounty hunter and a chasm teeming with monsters, but these moments don't last too long. Overall, kids will be happy to see their familiar friends and parents will be happy with the lesson SpongeBob learns about liking himself for who he is: a goofy kid.

A Bit of Urbane Renewal

Studio Theatre's expansion changes the landscape of Logan Circle

RENOVATION | Entering Studio Theatre's grand new entrance minus its signature marquee evokes confusion as well as admiration. The now three-building theater boasts a revived central lobby, three new auxiliary lobbies, two bars and a bookstore, a stunning glass atrium, six new classrooms, expanded restrooms, two new theaters and other patron-pleasing additions. Suddenly, confusion and admiration give way to awe.

A full complement of designers, contractors and administrators scurry to add the final pinch of modern to the almost-completely renovated theater. But will the marquee rise?

"Yes, yes," founding Artistic Director Joy Zinoman insisted, "that's all coming tomorrow."

Zinoman's "tomorrow" is the

BUILDING GOODWILL: Arts development like Studio's major revamping help brighten up the theater's 14th Street space and the Logan Circle area in general.

suite's "Miracle on 14th Street" grand-reopening, only three days away. Yet she remains positive the theater will be ready to accept its public. Examining the mess, she appears both pleased and overwhelmed, "You should have seen where we were two years ago."

Sparked by a growing number of patrons and students and, inversely, a diminishing space, the renovation was the first for Studio Theatre since its mere presence changed the face of 14th Street in the '70s.

Founded in 1978, shortly after Zinoman and friends arrived from Chicago where, she said, "they made theaters out of fountain spaces," Studio Theatre has been on the forefront of Logan Circle's revitalization for nearly 30 years.

A neighborhood almost completely devastated by the 1968 riots following the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. is again teeming with the industrial spirit that once affected "automobile row" — it was once home to numerous show rooms for cars.

And much of this urban liveliness can be credited to Studio Theatre.

"People told us we were crazy," said Zinoman. "They said we'd never get people to come to the theater on 14th Street" — once a stomping ground for D.C.'s "working girls" — "but they were wrong. People did come and they kept coming."

Today Studio Theatre is a force not only in Logan Circle but beyond, providing affordable theater to the severely theater-deprived and accessible classes to students the public school system would otherwise stifle.

Did Studio Theatre set out to overhaul a community? Said Zinoman: "Honestly, we were just young artists trying to influence where we were."

Wake for O.B.D.

Family, friends and fans unite in Harlem for a tearful goodbye

NEW YORK | Troubled rapper O.D.B., born Russell Jones, was remembered by family and friends at a Harlem church Wednesday where the focus was on the positives in his life.

"He just loved life," said his father, William Jones, a retired New York City Transit employee.

Jones, 35, collapsed and died Saturday inside a Manhattan recording studio. The cause of death remained undetermined, but the co-founder of the seminal rap group Wu-Tang Clan had struggled with drug and alcohol addictions. He had complained of chest pains before he died.

Floral arrangements flanked the casket in the front of the church, where mourners walked past the body. Jones' wife, Icelene Jones, sat in the front pew, and relatives, fans and friends gathered inside and outside St. James Presbyterian Church.

Icelene Jones, the rapper's wife, is embraced during the emotional wake.

Nathalie Dantignac, 53, said her sister was Jones' godmother, and her own had grown up with the future rap star. Jones was a "sweet, quiet kid," Dantignac said. "My son was a jokester too, so I guess that's why they clicked when they were young."

Better Than Nothing

DVD | A year ago, it seemed we might never see Jerry, Elaine, George and Kramer on DVD.

Happily, all four neurotic New Yorkers (and creator Larry David) are front and center on the much-anticipated release of the first three seasons of "Seinfeld" ($49.95 each for volumes one and two; $119.95 for gift set), television's most influential sitcom about nothing.

In addition to commentary tracks, there are numerous deleted scenes; "Inside Looks," into almost every episode; "Notes About Nothing," an option that displays written factoids onscreen; the documentary "How It Began"; bloopers; and more. It's all accessible via clever menu screens designed to resemble locations from the show.

The question isn't whether to buy the "Seinfeld" DVDs. It's whether to invest in the all-inclusive gift set, which includes volumes one and two, a copy of an original script signed by David, salt and pepper shakers from Monk's Diner and "Seinfeld" playing cards.

Most Hilarious Bonus: You may recognize some blooper-reel moments from "Seinfeld" retrospec-tives, but there are plenty of newly unveiled flubs. Most amazing of all: No matter how much everyone else is breaking up, Michael Richards never breaks character.

Most Educational Bonus: The "Inside Look" documentary on "The Parking Garage" is one of the more interesting docs on the DVD set. We learn how the crew built the specially designed set, which uncannily resembles a shopping mall parking garage. And the ending, where the car won't start? A serendipitous mistake that made a perfect conclusion to this commuting comedy of errors. JEN CHANEY (WASHINGTONPOST.COM)

Missives Accomplished

The Folger Library opens its vaults of correspondence

MUSEUMS | Before the days of Blackberries and instant messaging, lovers sharpened their goose quills, dipped them into homemade ink, folded their letters into little oblongs and sealed them with embroidery silk.

The Folger Shakespeare Library has dug into its huge collection and come up with the manuscript of a tender missive to the first Queen Elizabeth from her favorite. Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, addressed his letter formally, "To the Queens most excellent Maiesty," and sealed it with lime-green silk.

Ostensibly the letter is about preparations to meet the Spanish Armada launched against Britain in 1588.

"I may not forgett vppon my knees to yeld to your moost swete maiesty all humble & dutyful thanks for your great confort I receive euer from your owen swete self," he wrote more intimately.

He draws little eyebrows over the o's in "moost" — making them into her pet name for him: "Eyes."

The show also illustrates the speed at which the most urgent communications moved 400 years ago. Consider the order from London instructing the Lord Admiral to speed up ammunition to English ships in the battle. Marked "hast(e)" four times, with the hours it reached post stations carefully noted, it took 20 hours to complete its journey.

Shakespeare is represented by an early edition of his "King Lear," open to a vivid description of the deep emotional reaction by Cordelia to a letter being read to her by her evil sisters.

*".. once or twice she heaved
the name of 'father'
Pantingly forth as if it
pressed her heart,
Cried 'Sisters, sisters, shame of ladies sisters,'
... then away she started,
To deal with grief alone"*

Also displayed is a series of letters by James I, Elizabeth's successor. They were a failed attempt by the king to get a confession from a young favorite whom he had made the Earl of Somerset. The earl was jailed in a sex and murder scandal in which the king may have been involved.

Somerset was sentenced to death and then pardoned by the king. CARL HARTMAN (AP)

Movies Now Playing

FOR COMPLETE FILM CAPSULES SEE
WASHINGTONPOST.COM/ENTERTAINMENT

Reviews by The Washington Post's Sean Daly, Stephen Hunter, Michael O'Sullivan, Desson Thomson and Teresa Wiltz.

ALFIE (R, 103 minutes) This remake of Lewis Gilbert's 1966 film is an occasionally amusing, technically lovely but ultimately dated retelling of what was once a sly, chilly indictment of Swinging London during the '60s. With nary an acknowledgment that the past 40 years have happened, the plot suspiciously remains the same. The bed-hopping heroines of "Sex and the City" could spot a cad like Alfie Elkins (Jude Law) a mile away. (SD)

AFTER THE SUNSET (PG-13, 105 minutes) This is a heist picture, but the true crime is the eight bucks the filmmakers want to steal from you. Pierce Brosnan plays a high-end burglar now in retirement in the Caribbean with his accomplice and lover (Salma Hayek). But a doorknob-like diamond is coming to port, and everyone wants him to steal it. The only highlights are the crystal-blue waters and Hayek's wardrobe of swimsuits and sleepyparty things. (SH)

Brosnan

BRIDGET JONES'S DIARY: THE EDGE OF REASON (R, 108 minutes) Yes, it is v. funny. It's just not v. clever. Bridget (Renee Zellweger) is happily, obnoxiously in love with the somewhat stodgy Mark Darcy (Colin Firth). But getting the guy is never as funny as trying to get the guy. Instead of wit, we're served up forced slapstick. We get to see Mark and Daniel (Hugh Grant) throw punches over Bridget once again; we get to see Bridget get accidentally stoned on mushrooms and end up in a Thai jail; and, quite naturally, we get to see that all's well that ends well. (TW)

Bridget (Zellweger) is again seduced by the persuasive cad Daniel (Grant).

THE INCREDIBLES (PG-13, 115 minutes) Funny, inspired, with superb animation (that's superb and turbo combined), this is easily the best and brightest family-friendly movie of the year. Bob Parr (Craig T. Nelson) and his wife, Helen (Holly Hunter), "Mr. Incredible" and "Elastigirl," respectively, have been forced to skip town and are raising super-powered kids in suburban anonymity. Fifteen years into the Parrs' frustrating retirement, a slinky number named Mirage (Elizabeth Peña) invites Bob on a special mission—and what's a superheroic family to do, except follow? (DT)

The nameless boy of "Polar Express" stares blankly at a certain Mr. Claus.

THE POLAR EXPRESS (G, 93 minutes) An almost eerie adherence to Chris Van Allsburg's original storybook makes this film adaptation feel, at first, like a clinical operation. But amid those computer-generated pixels, there is life, liveliness and magic. Much of that zest comes from Tom Hanks, who plays five of the principal parts. His movements, expressions, gestures, voice—and those of the rest of the cast—have been regenerated into digital characters. The result is almost hypnotic: It's as if the bedside book itself started talking to you, its characters sitting up from the flat page and becoming three-dimensional. (DT)

LeBlanc

TARNATION (unrated, 88 minutes) Jonathan Caouette's heart-breaking film takes as its source imagery a stream of family photos, Super 8 movies, home video, campy film and television clips and snippets of amateur audio that tell the story of the filmmaker's strange and sad childhood, and his stranger and sadder family. Caouette's mother, Renee LeBlanc, was in and out of mental institutions from about age 11 onward. The repercussions for her son are painful. Diagnosed with depersonalization disorder, the filmmaker tells us that life for him "is a trip, like one long dream." "Tarnation" is the travelogue documenting that trip. It is incomplete, contradictory, as multifaceted (and as brilliant) as a diamond. (MO)

Non-Fiction Films Join Oscar Race

AWARDS | The fast-food indictment "Super Size Me" is among 12 films competing for best documentary at the Academy Awards. Other contenders released by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences include "Tupac: Resurrection"; the surfing chronicle "Riding Giants"; and "Born Into Brothels," a look at the harsh lives of children of Calcutta prostitutes. "Fahrenheit 9/11" creator Michael Moore has bypassed this category; he is promoting "Fahrenheit 9/11" as a best-picture candidate.

Muppets Take Cyberspace

Beloved characters get a synergistic Web site

BRANCHING OUT | The frog is back.

Kermit, Miss Piggy, Gonzo and their pals are starring in their own Web site — the first in a series of new creative efforts launched by the Walt Disney Co. since the corporation bought the Muppets in April.

The site, which debuted

Wednesday, features games, biographies of the Muppet characters, screensavers and news about current projects, including the new film “The Muppets Wonderful Wizard of Oz,” slated to air on ABC in May.

The movie is the first since “It’s a Very Merry Muppet Christmas Movie,” which aired on NBC in 2002.

The film had been proposed some time back to ABC executives, but was not approved until Disney bought the characters.

The characters have been grouped under the Muppets Holding Co., which is teaming with Disney’s film studio, television network, Internet operations and other divisions to create new films, videos and TV shows in the future.

BETH A. KEISER

The sale to Disney also includes a four-year consulting arrangement with the Jim Henson Co. to provide strategic advice on the use of the characters and a three-year production deal to develop movies, TV shows and other projects.

The deal does not include the Sesame Street characters, which were sold earlier by EM.TV to the Sesame Workshop.

LIVE MUSIC | A PUBLIC SERVICE MESSAGE

BIG HASSLE

ALL BITE: Awww. Just the name of this band — Dogs Die in Hot Cars — makes us sad. Fortunately, no puppies were hurt in the execution of this Scottish fivesome's angular, maddeningly melodic '80s-reminiscent pop. They'll be playing — safely and responsibly — at 9:30 Club on Friday.

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

KIDS! BUY STUFF NOW!
The loud, pointless and annoying new animated series HI HI PUFFY AMIYUMI (Fri., 7:30 p.m., Cartoon Network) follows the adventures of two female Japanese rock stars, Ami and Yumi (based on real-life band, Puffy AmiYumi). The cartoon's creator and producer calls "Hi Hi" "the perfect vehicle to introduce American audiences to this cool group and Japanese pop. It will be unlike anything you've ever seen." That might be true if you've been ignoring animation and pop culture for the past 50 years. "Hi Hi" is a hideous hybrid: Pure commodity, merchandised without mercy to impressionable minds.

MMM, STICKY LOVE'S ENDURING PROMISE (Sat., 9 p.m., Hallmark)? Sounds like a cheap perfume

sold only during the holidays. And in some ways, that's just what it is. "Love" is not a bad movie, just predictable from the first frame to the last. Set in the 19th-century heartland continually bathed in golden light, the film concerns a pretty young schoolmarm who must choose between two, or perhaps three, handsome suitors. Help yourself to a gift-wrapped bottle of "Love's Enduring Promise." Just don't spill any on the carpet.

TEAR-JERKER
OK, let's get this over with. THE WOOL CAP (8 p.m., Sunday, TNT) is the kind of movie that grabs you by the tear ducts and never lets go. Five minutes into screening this drama, in which William H. Macy plays a sad mute, my wife observed, "It's just like that Jackie Gleason movie that made me cry when I was little!" Macy, who won an Emmy for TNT's "Door to Door," is a lock for another round of cable-drama honors.

EXTREME ALMOST-DYING
Disaster strikes as two men attempt to climb a 21,000-foot peak in the Peruvian Andes in the riveting 2003 documentary TOUCHING THE VOID (Sun., 9 p.m., PBS). This is a remarkable true-life story of perseverance and survival accompanied by stunning cinematography.

ATTICUS! ATTICUS!
TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD (Sat., 8 p.m., TCM) The precocious daughter (Mary Badham) of a small-town lawyer (Gregory Peck) recalls a fateful Depression-era summer in this beloved 1962 drama.

IF WOMEN ARE GOING NUTS, IT MUST BE THE HOLIDAYS
On back-to-back episodes of COPS (Sat., Fox), wild women go from bad (8 p.m.), to worse (8:30 p.m.).

BLOND AMBITION: Alexander the Great re-enacts squinting into space.

WHAT SERENDIPITOUS TIMING
BATTLEGROUND: THE ART OF WAR (Sun., 9 p.m., Discovery) examines the military tactics of Alexander the Great. Followed by BECOMING ALEXANDER (10 p.m.).

Brunell's Crossroads

Redskins quarterback has no plans to retire despite poor play, benching

REDSKINS | Mark Brunell is 34 years old, has the worst stats in the league and has lost his job to a younger player two years in a row.

Is retirement on the table?

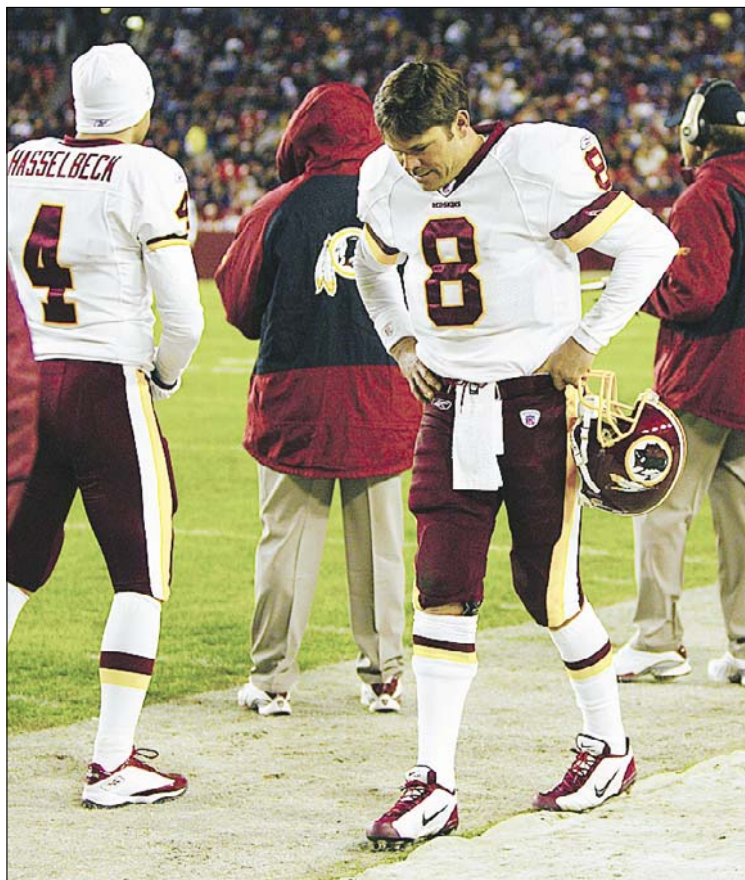

"No, I don't think so," the Washington Redskins quarterback said. "I still have a lot of confidence."

He has to draw deep within himself to find it. Brunell's 63.9 quarterback rating ranks last in the NFL. Last year, he was made expendable in Jacksonville by the arrival of Byron Leftwich. This year, he has been replaced by Patrick Ramsey.

Brunell's demotion is an embarrassment for coach Joe Gibbs, who invested more emotion and energy into recruiting Brunell than any other offseason signing. The Redskins gave Jacksonville a third-round draft pick and signed Brunell to a seven-year, $43 million contract with an $8.6 million signing bonus.

No wonder Gibbs waited so long to make the switch to Ramsey, and is so reluctant now to consider the Brunell signing a failure.

"I disagree with the fact that it hasn't worked out," Gibbs said. "We've got a long ways to go here. His role, and what it is going to amount to, what he does here for the Redskins, we are going to find out over the next several years."

DOWNER: Mark Brunell was benched for the second time in two years this week.

That's right. Gibbs said he envisions Brunell staying for "several years." Clearly, the coaching staff believes Brunell can still play, although their arguments aren't always convincing. Asked for signs that show Brunell isn't finished, assistant coach Joe Bugel gave an unorthodox answer.

Redskins Keys to the Game

NOV. 21: at Philadelphia Eagles
4:15 p.m. (Fox)

→ TIME OF POSSESSION: The Redskins have to keep Philly's offense off the field to stay even close.

→ TURNOVERS: With such a big margin of error, the Redskins can't let any turnover possibilities slip away.

→ DIVINE INTERVENTION: Let's face it, a miracle is about the only way Washington wins on Sunday.

"Just the way he pushed back from center, you've got to think his legs are still lively," said Bugel. But what about Brunell's arm, coach? "We're not ready to throw the dirt on Lefty," Bugel responded.

Brunell might remain in the Redskins' plans solely for salary cap reasons. He could be an overpriced backup next season.

Brunell has said the right things this week, especially concerning his support for Ramsey, but he's clearly not happy about being benched. Asked if this break could be beneficial to help him analyze what has gone wrong, he shot back quickly: "No. I don't think so." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Expos Vote Delayed

MLB remains confident team will play in D.C.

BASEBALL | The Montreal Expos remain in limbo, already out of one home but not quite ready to move into a new one.

Instead of rubber-stamping the Expos' proposed move to Washington as expected Thursday, Major League Baseball owners made the surprise decision to table the vote. Commissioner Bud Selig said the move will still take place, with a vote by owners coming by Dec. 6. "We will get this done," Selig said. "We just weren't quite ready with a lot of details."

Baseball officials are so confident the team will be in Washington for its April 15 home opener, in fact, that alternatives weren't even discussed. Season tickets went on sale Thursday morning, and the team announced that manager Frank Robinson had agreed to a one-year contract extension.

The Expos' agreement with Washington calls for funding for a new stadium in Southeast Washington to be in place by Dec. 31. But D.C. Council Chair Linda Cropp postponed a vote to seek private financing.

Approval requires two votes by the council. The first is now scheduled for Nov. 30, with the second vote likely coming on Dec. 14.

Selig said the issues that delayed the vote were "internal," describing them as "housekeeping" matters. He declined to be more specific, but one could be baseball's negotiations with Baltimore Orioles owner Peter Angelos.

"That wasn't the real reason, but certainly I would hope that everything is completed before we vote so we can move on," Selig said.

Baseball officials plan to announce by Friday when the franchise will be renamed. Selig favors calling the team by its old name, the Washington Senators, but the Washington Nationals is the leading contender. NANCY ARMOUR (AP)

HOUSECLEANING: Commissioner Bud Selig said some details have to be worked out before the owners approve the Expos' move. He said a vote will happen soon.

Greek Sprinters Charged With Dodging Drug Test

OLYMPICS | Greek sprinters Kostas Kenteris and Katerina Thanou and their coach were charged Thursday with avoiding a drug test on the eve of the Athens Olympics and faking a motorcycle accident hours later.

Chief prosecutor Dimitris Papangelopoulos, announcing the results of a two-month investigation, issued charges against the two athletes and coach Christos Tzekos. The coach was also charged with illegally importing and selling banned substances.

No trial date was set, though it is not expected to go to trial for at least a year. "These charges are groundless and legally unsubstantiated," said Michalis Dimitrakopoulos, the lawyer for the sprinters. (AP)

Spurrier Finds a Home

Ex-Redskins coach headed to South Carolina

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Former Redskins coach Steve Spurrier has agreed to take over as football coach at South Carolina if Lou Holtz retires at the end of the season, The Tennessean of Nashville reported in Thursday's editions.

An announcement regarding Spurrier, who won a national championship at Florida, is expected next week, the newspaper said, citing an anonymous source close to the situation.

South Carolina spokesman Kerry Tharp denied the report. He said the 67-year-old Holtz still needs to decide whether to return for a seventh season with the Gamecocks.

"Let's let him make that assessment," Tharp told The Associated Press. "I can't comment on what people are speculating. I'd just as soon leave it at that."

South Carolina athletic director Mike McGee would not confirm or deny the report and referred all questions to Tharp. Holtz canceled a scheduled meeting with the media Thursday after practice.

Several times this season Holtz has said he felt tired and worn out. He's also mentioned that Spurrier would be a good choice to succeed him. (AP)

CLOTHESLINE: Redskins rookie safety Sean Taylor will gladly take credit for this hit on Sunday, but he stayed silent following accusations that he spat on a Bengal.

Taylor Off the Hook

NFL won't fine rookie for allegedly spitting on Bengals receiver

REDSKINS | The NFL said Thursday that Washington Redskins safety Sean Taylor will not be fined in connection with an alleged spitting incident in Sunday's game against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Bengals coach Marvin Lewis said one of his players was spit on during Cincinnati's 17-10 victory. Lewis did not name either player involved, although comments from receiver T.J. Houshmandzadeh implied that the culprit was Taylor.

The league, as it does every week, carefully examined every play from the game and found insufficient evidence for action.

"Sean Taylor will not be fined," NFL spokesman Michael Signora said. "There was no video evidence to support a fine."

Taylor has not commented on the matter. The No. 5 overall draft pick from Miami hasn't spoken to the media since he was arrested and charged with drunken driving on Oct. 28. Taylor's difficult rookie year has also included a $25,000 fine for skipping one day of a rookie symposium.

Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said Wednesday he had not discussed the spitting matter with Taylor.

"It really hasn't been a big deal to me," said Gibbs, who added: "I don't have a clue what's happened here." (AP)

Ravens' Boller Silences Critics With Strong Play

RAVENS | He has endured criticism from the media, jeers from the home crowd and been ridiculed on the local sports talk shows.

Through it all, Baltimore quarterback Kyle Boller remained confident of his ability to provide leadership and produce touchdowns.

Now, in the wake of his finest performance as a pro, his teammates share that belief.

Boller brought the Ravens from behind Sunday with a touchdown pass in the final five minutes of regulation, then directed the game-winning drive in overtime to lift Baltimore to a 20-17 victory over the New York Jets. It marked the first time in his two-year career that Boller erased a fourth-quarter deficit.

Despite criticism, Kyle Boller showed improvement in the Ravens' win Sunday.

Next time, the Ravens will trust Boller to come up with an adequate encore. "He's really putting it together now and becoming a leader," running back Jamal Lewis said. (AP)

Owens Apologizes

Eagles receiver sorry for his role in steamy skit

TELEVISION | While Terrell Owens would never say he's sorry for his flashy touchdown celebrations, he did apologize Thursday to anyone offended by his role in a steamy segment with actress Nicollette Sheridan for the intro to "Monday Night Football."

"I felt like it was clean, the organization felt like it was a clean skit and I think it just really got taken out of context with a lot of people and I apologize for that," Owens said.

ABC and the Eagles also apologized this week, with the team saying it wished the titillating segment "hadn't aired."

The opening, which has generated complaints to ABC and the Federal Communications Commission, showed Sheridan (of the hit show

Terrell Owens thought it was clean, but his apologized for the Monday intro.

"Desperate Housewives") wearing only a towel and provocatively asking Owens to skip the game for her as the two stood alone in a locker room. She drops the towel and jumps into Owens' arms.

Reaction has ranged from amusement to anger.

Indianapolis Colts coach Tony Dungy found it racially offensive; Owens is black and Sheridan is white. Philadelphia quarterback Donovan McNabb said people were overreacting. Michael Powell, chairman of the FCC, questioned ABC's judgment in airing the scene.

Even Rush Limbaugh, who made a racially charged critique of McNabb last season said he was "shocked" by the content, which was "too close to this Kobe Bryant situation for comfort."

Is Manning the Answer for N.Y.?

Rookie quarterback picked to lead Giants to win in first start

NFL PICKS | When it was announced Eli Manning would start for the New York Giants against Atlanta on Sunday, the Falcons quickly became 2½-point favorites in a game that opened at pick 'em.

Ben Roethlisberger's success aside, that's the perception of rookie quarterbacks — they cost their team almost a field goal, especially when they have a leaky offensive line and are facing a good pass rush.

But Tom Coughlin made the switch in part because Kurt Warner has been tentative in the Giants' last four games, three of them losses. Coughlin's reasoning: Manning gets rid of the ball faster and is at the point where he's comfortable with the system.

Both teams are like most of the league — unpredictable.

In losing three of four, the Giants were beaten by Detroit and Chicago at home and by Arizona on the road, all games they could have (some say "should have") won. They won at Minnesota as an underdog.

The Falcons were beaten in Kansas City 56-10 but came back the next week to win at Denver.

One more thing: The Giants have lost at home to Atlanta in each of the last two seasons, but Michael Vick was hurt both times.

Two years ago, Doug Johnson was the quarterback, last year it was Kurt Kittner. Johnson is now Tennessee's third-stringer, and Kittner has been cut this year by the Falcons, Bengals, Giants, Patriots and Steelers.

Because neither Johnson nor Kittner is playing this week, and because New York's offensive line will be cut en masse if it doesn't protect the the future of the franchise ...

Disappointing teams try to salvage season with upset victories

COLLEGE PICKS | There's no better way to salvage a disappointing season than ruining your archrivals' grand plans.

Alabama, Ohio State, BYU and Stanford have that opportunity Saturday.

Auburn (10-0) brings national title hopes into the Iron Bowl against Alabama. In the Big Ten's most heated rivalry, No. 7 Michigan (9-1) will be trying to lock up a second straight conference title and trip to the Rose Bowl against Ohio State.

Fifth-ranked Utah (10-0) is trying to become the first team from a non-BCS conference to earn a BCS bowl bid. A win over in-state rival BYU (5-5) would all but seal a trip to one of the $14 million games.

Then there's the Big Game between California (8-1) and Stanford (4-6). The fourth-ranked Golden Bears are trying to reach the Rose Bowl for the first time in 46 years.

Brits Furious at Racist Soccer Taunts

SOCCER | The British government condemned racist taunts by fans in Spain aimed at black players on England's team during an exhibition game, and soccer's governing body ordered an investigation Thursday.

Fans repeatedly made monkey noises whenever Shaun Wright-Phillips and Ashley Cole touched the ball during Spain's 1-0 victory in Madrid on Wednesday night.

British Sports Minister Richard

Caborn said he was writing to Spanish authorities to express

Blair

"outrage." Prime Minister Tony Blair's spokesman said his government was disappointed. Spanish Sports Minister Maria Jesus San Segundo said Spain's Anti-Violence Commission would consider ways of preventing future racist taunts. (AP)

Maryland's Fast Break

COLLEGE HOOPS | Now that Brenda Frese's rebuilding plan at Maryland is on a fast track, she plans to thrust her foot onto the accelerator.

There once was a time when the Maryland women's basketball team dominated the Atlantic Coast Conference and regularly earned a lofty seed in the NCAA tournament. Chris Weller won eight ACC titles and amassed 10 seasons with at least 20 victories before the program slipped into mediocrity.

Frese took over in 2002 after a successful run at Minnesota, and the rejuvenated Terrapins appear to be on the brink of returning to national prominence.

The trek begins Friday at Appalachian State. Maryland then hosts Siena on Sunday before facing Final Four participant Louisiana State on Nov. 26.

Operating with a squad that contains four freshmen and four sophomores, Frese knows it might be a while before the Terrapins mesh as a unit. "The sky's the limit for this team; it's just a matter of how quickly we develop and how quickly the chemistry unfolds," she said. (AP)

Yankee's Torre Eager to Snatch Pedro From Sox

BASEBALL | New York Yankees manager Joe Torre would love to have Pedro Martinez in his rotation — just like he'd love to have any great starting pitcher.

"Pedro's one of the elite pitchers in baseball," Torre said Thursday before a lecture sponsored by SMU. "As a manager, you want all the toys on the shelf, there's no question."

Adding Martinez would be different, though, because he's more than just a staff ace. He also just helped rival Boston win the World Series.

Torre

And he called the Yankees his "daddy" because of their success against him.

Now a free agent, Martinez and his agents met Tuesday with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner in Tampa, Fla. "I don't know what's going to come of it," Torre said. "Having George meet with him — he doesn't meet with people just for the sake of meeting them." (AP)

Designers are getting the party started with patent leather styles

One dressing dilemma is solved by patent leather: When you're headed out to a celebration of any sort, pull those shiny patent pumps out of the closet, and you'll see the party has already started.

"There is something very celebratory and festive about patent leather," says accessories designer Kate Spade. "It goes back to the days of patent leather Mary Janes, which were your party shoes as a child."

But patent leather isn't limited to black and boring.

This season, Spade offers a classic patent pump shape with a matte satin ribbon in both black and a festive silver, and there's a patent sling-back sandal with a pink and black raffia flower for embellishment.

"I love the shine of patent leather mixed with a matte finish detail. The mix adds an element of sophistication to the surprise of patent," Spade says.

Patent leather isn't limited by season or trend, either, adds Reed Krakoff, president and executive director of Coach.

"Patent leather adds a unique dimension to handbags and accessories. Used as a subtle accent or a primary material, patent is both festive and fashionable," he adds.

Jimmy Choo's current collection features a pointy-toe, stiletto boot in bottle green-colored patent. A more delicate high-heel shoe with grosgrain bow detail is offered in baby blue and pink.

Tamara Mellon, founder and president of Jimmy Choo, says using patent leather in bright

Shiny lips are desirable because they are sexy without being over the top, says Sakas. "Shine always indicates sexiness and is also associated with high glamour."

It's the high shine that gives patent leather its sex appeal, says Eric Sakas, president of Kevyn Aucoin Beauty, which features a product called Liquid Patent Lip.

Sakas says Aucoin, who died in 2002, personally oversaw the development of Liquid Patent because he wanted to be sure it would be shiny without being heavy. Aucoin used a test-version of the product in his book "Face Forward," using a pearlized midnight blue as a stain and adding a more traditional gloss on top.

Weekend

Got Plans?

Washingtonpost.com's ENTERTAINMENT GUIDE STAFF was online Thursday with their best bets for where to be and what to do | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

A group of 30-something women want to do high tea this Sunday for a 35th birthday. We know about the Mayflower — any other suggestions?

A few of us glamorous girls had tea recently at the Cafe Mozu in the Mandarin Oriental. And we loved everything about it: the view of the river, the pretty pot of tea floating with rose petals and some of the best scones (I did declare) that I'd ever had. Pricey though.

Can you suggest a good jazz or blues bar in D.C.? I'm looking for your cliched smoky, dimly lit, hole-in-the-wall joint with a mid-20s crowd.

You need to get down to HR-57 on 14th Street. "Hole in the wall" is a pretty apt description. Usually pretty good music and you can bring your own booze — or buy it there.

Heard the City Museum is closing to the general public Nov. 28. Is it worth checking out this weekend?

The City Museum does indeed close Nov. 28. I'd check it out now if you have the chance. If you go, skip the multimedia presentation and just look at some of the exhibits. It's a beautiful space (one you won't see the inside of again unless you rent the place). The museum's just a short walk from Gallery Place where you might find another not oft-visited museum, the Koshland Science Museum.

I'm in Arlington and have some friends coming up who are interested in some live music on Friday or Saturday. They tend to like lower-key places that serve good beer. Any recommendations?

You don't have to go far. Iota is a low key place with great beer. Glen Phillips, the lead singer from Toad the Wet Sprocket (remember them?) will play there on Friday. And blue-collar rocker Joe Grushecky is there Saturday. You can also try down the street at Galaxy Hut for more of an indie rock scene. But it's also a friendly place with a good beer selection and no annoying indie rock attitude.

Letters

The Smoke Clears in Britain

I APPLAUD BRITAIN for joining the growing number of countries that are ridding their pubs and restaurants of smoking, as reported in Wednesday's Express. Having lived in England myself, I can say that it is the pub itself that is "at the heart of the nation's social life," not necessarily the "smoky" pub. Why perpetuate the ridiculous myth that smoking and pubs are inseparable? Here's to passing time in good company, with a good brew — in good air!

—D.E. MCFADDEN
Greenbelt, Md.

Corrections:

In our dining section Thursday the price for Maggiano's Thanksgiving take-out dinner was incorrect. The correct price is $29.95 per person. Also on Thursday, a story on Sen. Elizabeth Dole contained incorrect information. She remains an active member of the U.S. Senate.

PRIZES

'Major Honorary Award.' Translation: You're Old Now

ROBIN WILLIAMS will receive a major honorary award from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association. Williams will receive the Cecil B. DeMille Award in January, Reuters reported Thursday. The DeMille honor is given each year by the organization to an actor who has made an "out-standing contribution to the entertainment field." (EXPRESS)

MEMOS

'Everyone Should Simply Inherit Their Posts, As I Did'

PRINCE CHARLES' low opinion about education in Britain has been uncovered in a memo from March 2003. "What is wrong with everyone nowadays?" he wrote. "Why do they all seem to think they are qualified to do things far beyond their technical capabilities?" He kept going: "People think they can all be pop stars, High Court judges, brilliant TV personalities or infinitely more competent heads of state without ever putting in the necessary work or having natural ability. This is the result of social utopianism, which believes humanity can be genetically and socially engineered to contradict the lessons of history." (AP)

Social utopianism threatens the carrying of fancy canes.

DEBATE

The Wallaroo: Has Science Gone Too Far?

VANILLA ICE called animal control officials in Port St. Lucie, Fla., on Wednesday to report that a wallaroo and goat found wandering around had escaped from his backyard, city officials said. The wallaroo, a cross between a wallaby and a kangaroo, is considered an exotic animal and is not allowed in Port St. Lucie. Farm animals also are banned. The animals were picked up Saturday after a woman said the 60-pound

"My wallaroo/he's not a kangaroo/he's not a wallaby/oh but he's my bay-bee."

wallaroo, Bucky, had scratched her and kicked her car. In January, Buck scratched Ice's face. (AP)

A VIRUS?

Male Actors Inexplicably Cannot Shut Up About Bond

COLIN FIRTH is done being Bridget Jones' nice guy, but he's not against donning British agent 007's tuxedo. "At the moment, I can't think of anything I would be less attracted to," said Firth about the possibility of a third "Bridget Jones." However, the actor told Entertainment Weekly that he'd seriously consider taking over the James Bond franchise from Pierce Brosnan. Unlike Colin Farrell, who says he's not interested in the role despite being Brosnan's choice, there's been no talk of Firth grabbing Bond's Walther PPK. (AP)

INVESTING

Speculators Cash In On 'Zeta-Jones Effect'

Local authorities in Mumbles, Wales, have approved construction of 42 new houses next to a home owned by CATHERINE ZETA-JONES. She and husband Michael Douglas hadn't opposed construction of the houses. Some have speculated the three- and four-bedroom homes will fetch top prices because of the proximity to the famous couple. "Whether or not being a neighbor of a Hollywood star is an allure I cannot say," said councilor Mark Child. "I know it would not be for me." (AP)

LOVEFESTS

One-Hit Wonders

The stars of "Seinfeld" turned out Wednesday to celebrate the release of the first three seasons on DVD, at long last. Perhaps JULIA LOUIS-DREYFUS and MICHAEL RICHARDS took the opportunity to look back at their recent failed sitcom attempts and feel bad for disappointing America. (EXPRESS)

On Nov. 19, President Lincoln delivered the Gettysburg Address as he dedicated a cemetery at the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania; also, in 1969, astronauts aboard Apollo 12 made man's second moon landing.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You're likely to be asked on board a project to which you can lend your considerable talent. Money may not be involved, but reputation is key.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You're going to want to do something special for yourself—and, as a result, something special will be done for someone else.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day for you to take on a new opponent in a friendly test of wills or ability. You may find you have something to learn.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Travel may be in the picture, and you're going to want to arrange things so that you can be in charge—at least some of the time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may come up against someone or something that by will or by nature can only stand in your way. Careful thought will surely be required.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your contact with someone, whom you work quite well with, will become more and more involved—and in the days to come.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Competition is healthy, and you won't be able to get enough of it—provided your opponent is one whom you know well and trust.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Now is a perfect time for you to contact someone who has been out of your life lately. You can't start over, but you can make amends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some quiet time can do you a world of good, as you've been quite busy and you require a little more self-concern right now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Things may be changing ever so slightly, and you'll want to keep your eyes and ears open, searching for signs of negative trends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You and a competitor are likely to be placed in the same work situation. Can you both get along? It will be up to you to make the peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You, and only you, may realize exactly what someone else is up to. It may be up to you when the time comes to step in and reverse his or her course.
